

Instructional Designer

Role Overview:

Reporting directly to the Digital Learning Manager, you will be responsible for working closely with client Subject Matter Experts, in-house senior learning consultants and the digital learning team in the design and production of online and work-based learning materials across multiple subject areas and sectors.

You will design creative content storyboards that really bring the learning to life and use a combination of media to create a learning experience that will motivate the learner to apply their learning in practice and deliver the performance improvement that is needed.

You will work alongside your learning technologist and AV colleagues to ensure that your vision for the content is transformed online and adds to our award winning body of work for clients around the world.

Candidate profile:

You need to be creative to work in the Aurion team, with a deep understanding of learning, have strong attention to detail, and be able to communicate and negotiate with confidence.

We're after an instructional designer that has a detailed knowledge of learning theories, methodologies and techniques and you need to be able to demonstrate innovative and creative solutions to meet client needs.

Essential Requirements:

- Third level qualification in teaching, instructional design, or a related field.
- Minimum 3 years' experience post qualification as an instructional designer designing digital learning materials that are delivered over the web.
- Excellent presentation skills.
- Excellent written and verbal English language skills.

Desirable Requirements:

- Experience of facilitating client workshops to create a curriculum or content design and overall teaching model using multiple media.
- AV production experience.
- Experience working with Learning Management Systems.
- Experience in the design of classroom-based training courses.

Why Aurion?

Aurion Learning is a multiple award winning company that delivers innovative digital learning solutions for large corporate and public sector clients in local and international markets. Continued company growth means that we are now looking for another fulltime Instructional Designer to join the team.

By joining our highly skilled learning design team, you will get the opportunity to think creatively and work on a wide range of interesting and challenging projects in the e-learning and digital media field. If you are interested in pushing people's perception of what learning is and where it can happen, want to work in a friendly working environment that respects work-life balance and offers lots of opportunity for CPD, then we would love to hear from you.

Salary: Negotiable, depending upon experience.

To apply for this role, please send a cover letter outlining relevant skills and experience, samples of your work and a detailed curriculum vitae to info@aurionlearning.com.
