

Dr. Maureen Murphy is Managing Director of Aurion Learning. Maureen completed her PhD studies in the use of Artificial Intelligence for educational systems design between the University of Ulster and Stanford University in California, with her research studies funded by a US aerodynamics research company. Dr. Murphy launched Aurion Learning back in 1999, having completed 6 years as a lecturer in Information Systems Design and Educational Computing in the University of Ulster. Dr. Murphy has published over 30 articles in the area of educational systems design and as well as managing Aurion Learning, now concentrates on helping clients develop best practice yet pragmatic, learning centred strategies for making eLearning work within their organisations.